HERITAGE BUILDING SYSTEMS CELEBRATES 30 YEARS OF SERVICE WITH SPECIAL PRICING

September 22, 2009 – Houston – Heritage Building Systems, a leading full-service manufacturer of custom-designed steel buildings and mini-storage units since 1979, today announced special pricing on several of its structures to celebrate its 30-year anniversary.

Over the past 30 years, Heritage has remained customer-focused and, while technology has advanced, its commitment to personal service has remained the same. Heritage got its start when founders Byron & Scott House discovered a need in the do-it-yourself marketplace. The company's initial focus was to offer products and services to those who were capable of constructing their own metal building.

Throughout their 30 years in business, the people of Heritage have accomplished several milestones. To date, they have sold over 36,000 buildings and are proud to manufacture their products in IAS accredited facilities. Today, Heritage continues to put its customers first and strives for excellence in the metal building industry. While much has changed at Heritage in the past 30 years, its core values have never wavered.

To commemorate this momentous occasion, Heritage is offering pricing that, according to company executives, "only comes along every 30 years." Some of the special pricing customers can look forward to include:

- 24' x 24' x 10' for $4,599
- 30' x 42' x 10' for $6,356
- 42' x 54' x 12' for $9,679
- 57' x 66' x 14' for $14,997

Barry Clifton, Sales Manager of Heritage Building Systems, attributes the company's many years of success to "doing something right the first time, every time." In addition, Barry adds, "We are a people-powered company and through the next 30 years our devotion to quality work will endure. We will continue to do more of what got us here."
